18 U. S. SOLDIERS KILLED AND 52 WOUNDED

BATTLE ON EDGE OF VOLCANO; 600 MOROS ARE SLAIN

American Troops Fight Their Way to a Crater 2,100 Feet High and Completely Wipe Out a Band of Lawless Jolo Natives.

THE WOUNDED OFFICERS.

AGNEW, ERNEST II., First Lieutenant, wounded in hand; slight CONWAY, WILEY T., First Lieutenant, eye, slight. COOKE H. S., Ensign, wounded in foot; serious.

GILMORE, ---, coxswain. JOHNSTON, GORDON, First Lieutenant; wounded in shoulder serious.

RIVERS, TYREE R., Captain, wounded in thigh; slight, WHITE, JOHN R., captain of local constabulary.

MANILA, March 9.—Eighteen United States soldiers were killed and fifty-two officers and men wounded in a battle with the Moros which lasted nearly two days. Six hundred Moros were killed.

The battle took place at Mount Dajo, near Joio. It began on the afternoon of March 6 and lasted until the morning of March 8. A force including United States infantry, a naval detachment and some of the local constabulary, under the command of Col. Joseph W. Duncan, of the Sixth Infantry, climbed a lava cone 2.100 feet high with a crater at the summit. It was so extremely steep that the artillery had to be taken up with block and tackle for 300 feet. The last 400 feet was at an angle of sixty degrees. Gen, Leonard Wood was present during the engagement, but did not take command of the operations. GEN. WOOD'S REPORT.

Gen. Wood sent this report from Jolo, capital of the Sulu Islands: "A severe action between troops, a naval detachment and constabulary and hostile Moros has taken place at Mount Dajo, near Jolo. The Roundsman Craig. attached to the West One Hundredth street station, had a half holiday. He rented from an automobile company in Harlem a big double-seated machine. The concern sent along one of its own drivers, since Craig knew little or nothing about handling a car. The driver was Alex. Cummings, of No. 132 West One Hundred and Ninth street. At Craig's home, No. 6 West One Hun
